No investigation pertinent to your inquiry has been conducted by the FBI concerning the captioned individual. However, the files of this Bureau reveal the following information which may relate to the subject of your name check request.

The "San Francisco Examiner" for October 4, 1957, carried an article stating that Lawrence Ferlinghetti, 38 year old poet who was proprietor of the "City Lights Pocket Book Shop," 261 Columbus Avenue, San Francisco, California, and Shigeyoshi Murao, a nisei art student and clerk in the store, had been acquitted on charges of dealing in obscene literature. The article went on to explain that Ferlinghetti was the publisher of a 44-page booklet that contained a poem entitled "Howl," written by Allen Ginsberg. The article stated that Municipal Court Judge Clayton Horn found at least some "redeeming social importance" in "Howl."

Records of the San Francisco Police Department reveal an arrest of [redacted] on June 6, 1957, when he was charged with violation of Section 311.3, in that he "writes or prints or publishes or sells or exhibits any obscene or indecent writing...." The disposition of the charge was given as "not guilty," on October 3, 1957.

Government and his connection with other Communist organizations and/or individuals. The dissemination is also believed warranted in view of his own professed antipathy toward the Federal Government and its representatives and his self-described background as left wing, Russian. As noted in the report, GINSBERG has frequently demonstrated publicly for various causes and is a self-admitted user of narcotics and a former psychiatric patient (u)

A review of GINSBERG's activities, however, reflects no basis either from a membership or activity standpoint for his inclusion on the Security Index. His activities, while bizarre, have not indicated any direction or being inimical to the interests of the US. (u)

No interview of GINSBERG is recommended at any time in view of his narcotic and sexual proclivities, his psychiatric history and his connections with mass media. It is felt that any interview with him would be unproductive and in all probability could result in embarrassment to the Bureau through his use of connections in the mass media field to publicize such interview. (u)

This report contains the entire sum of information contained in the files of the NYO identifiable with the subject and the results of investigation conducted currently in this matter. No further investigation appears warranted of GINSBERG at this time and this case is being placed in a closed status at New York. (u)

I. INFORMATION RELATIVE TO SUBJECT'S
TRAVEL AND ACTIVITIES IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

The Foreign Broadcast Information Service for January 22, 1965, in daily report - Latin America Number 14, reflected the following transmittal in Spanish from Havana, Cuba, on January 19, 1965: (u)

"The United States poet ALLEN GINSEBERG arrived in Cuba to participate as a poetry judge in this year's contest of the Cuban Cultural Organization, House of the Americas. He will be part of the jury that is made up of outstanding poets from different countries." (u)

letter addressed to Mr. ROBERT M. MORGENTHAU, United States

January 30, 1963, over the name ALLEN GINSBERG, care of Eighth Street Book Store, 32 West Eighth Street, New York City (u)

NY 105-71471

In this letter GINSBERG was protesting the Government's prosecution of an income tax case against the Living Theater, JULIAN BECK and JUDITH MOLINA. In this letter he indicated that he had furnished material for use in this theater. In the letter he stated that he had assignments or requests to write for various publications including "Playboy" and "Esquire" as well as access to letter columns in the "New York Times" and "London Times". He stated he maintained correspondence with large magazines in India, Russia, France and England. He said he felt it would be his duty to go all out and start screaming through these media if he judges that the Government policy decision in the Living Theater matter ultimately amounts to political and/or cultural confusion. (u)

The following is a summary translation of an item in Spanish which appeared in "Bohemia" issue of February 28, 1965, published in Venezuela. This item was furnished by NY T-1 on March 8, 1965: (u)

MISERIES OF CIVILIZATION

The Permanent Central Board on Opium in the United Nations has just declared that it considers the war on the illegal drug traffic lost. (u)

In view of this statement, and bearing in mind the experience of the English, the New York Medical Association has requested that physicians be authorized to furnish drugs to addicts in limited quantities. Judge BERNARD BOEIN of the New York Court of Appeals has proposed that special treatment be afforded to alcoholics, drug addicts and homosexuals, and stated that society should revise its opinions concerning the "social vices". (u)

"At the same time that this news was made public, groups of 'beatniks' of Greenwich Village, headed by the existentialist poet, ALLEN GINSBERG, marched through the (u) streets of New York's Bohemian district in a demonstration, requesting the authorities to legalize the consumption of marijuana which they say is less dangerous than alcohol."(u)

The newspaper "Marcha" of Montevideo, Uruguay, issue of December 1, 1961, contained a "Declaration of Conscience" signed by several people which is as follows:(u)

"The people of Revolutionary Cuba have the right to determine their own destiny without intervention from the United States Government. (u)

"We consider that in financing, arming and training exiled Cubans and in planning and participating in the invasion of April 17, 1961, the United States Government has intervened and has committed an act of aggression against the Cuban people. (u)

"We understand that the invasion of April 17 and the continued aggressive attitude of our Government places in danger not only the people of Cuba and the cause of world peace but also our own liberty as North Americans. The request by President KENNEDY that the Press install a system of self-censorship does nothing but continue the process of suppression and regimentation of North American life under the pretext of 'the struggle in the cold war'. It is not a coincidence that the acts of hostility against Revolutionary Cuba which culminated in the April invasion have been enthusiastically seized by the 'official liberals' of the regime as well as by the militarists, the 'big businessmen' and their Press, the southern racists and the McCarthyites. (u)

"If we want to safeguard liberty in the United States, we must do everything in our reach to oppose and avoid all ulterior aggression against the people of Revolutionary Cuba."(u)

NY 105-71471

N.Y. The newspaper article, which was from the December 1, 1961, edition, contained the names of the following persons who signed the declaration: ELAINE DE KOONING, DIANE DI PRIMA, EDWARD DORN, LAWRENCE FERLINGHETTI, ALLEN GINSBERG, PAUL GOODMAN, LE ROI JONES, NORMAN MAILLER, JONAS MEKAS, WARREN MILLER, MARGARET RANDALL, MAY SCHLEIFER, ESTABAN VINCENTE, ATHOS ZACHARIAS. (u)

The "New York Herald Tribune" edition of December 28, 1964, on Page 13, contained an article by BILL WHITWORTH of the Herald Tribune staff captioned "With Cymbals and Symbols". (u)

This article reflected that in the East Village area of New York City on the preceding day a demonstration was held by a group called Lemar. This name is a contraction of "Legalize Marijuana". The article stated, however, that the group has no officers, no formal organization and no firm plan of action beyond distributing leaflets and staging demonstrations. (u)

The demonstrators on this occasion demonstrating in front of the Department of Welfare Building on East Ninth Street and Avenue C carried signs reading "Smoke pot, it is cheaper and healthier than liquor", and "Pot is a Reality Kick". Pot is a term for marijuana. (u)

Among the demonstrators were ALLEN GINSBERG and PETER ORLOVSKY, poets, who carried little Japanese finger cymbals and chanted Hindu prayer formulas directed to Shiva, one of the Hindu principle deities. GINSBERG described Shiva as the god of meditation, yoga and marijuana. GINSBERG predicted that marijuana will be recognized in the United States within five years. (u)

The "New York Times" issue of January 4, 1965, Page 24, column 3, contained an article about an organization known as Lemar founded in San Francisco to fight legislation against marijuana. It identified ALLEN GINSBERG, the poet, as a leading New York member of Lemar. (u)

NY 105-71471

The "New York Times" issue of December 28, 1964, identified ALLEN GINSBERG, the poet, as one of the leaders of the group, Lemar, which demonstrated at East Ninth Street and Avenue C in New York City, on December 27, 1964. This article was similar to the article contained in the "New York Herald Tribune" mentioned above. (u)

The "New York Times" issue of January 28, 1963, identified ALLEN GINSBERG with Lemar. It stated that he and PETER ORLOVSKY donned Japanese finger cymbals and showed up outside the New York Department of Welfare carrying a sign reading "Smoke Pot, It is Cheaper and Healthier than Liquor" on the previous day. (u)

The "New York Times" issue of July 29, 1964, contained an article reflecting that GINSBERG spoke at a meeting to form a neighborhood association in the McDougal Street area of Greenwich Village, New York. He spoke for the right of young people to read poetry in the coffee houses and put on dramatic performances without charge. (u)

The "New York Times" issue of May 24, 1964, contained an article concerning the Cafe Le Metro which had recently been cited by a license inspector of the New York City Department of Licenses for conducting dramatic performances without the necessary licenses. The article stated that GINSBERG has read poetry there along with other individuals such as PETER ORLOVSKY, LEROI JONES, PAUL BLACKBURN, et cetera. The article stated that when the inspector arrived at the Cafe, GINSBERG was not present. He had just returned to New York after a three year stay in Europe, North Africa and India. GINSBERG became incensed at the citation and was one of the leaders in the protest against it. In this connection the article stated that GINSBERG worked with Manhattan Borough President HENRY STERN and the leader of the East Village Council SAUL SHERRISON, who were sympathetic to GINSBERG's cause. It (u)

stated that he also worked with the Village Independent Democrats in this cause. STERN went with GINSBERG to the Department of Licenses of New York City and the American Civil Liberties Union aided GINSBERG by assigning a lawyer to work with him in the matter. The article also stated that GINSBERG carried his protest to the New York City Office of Cultural Affairs. (u)

There is nothing listed under the name IRWIN GINSBERG or under the spelling GINSBURG. (u)

The "New York Times" edition of January 20, 1957, identified ALLEN GINSBERG as one of the leaders of an avant garde group of writers from San Francisco, California. It identified him as a friend of JACK KEROUAC and WILLIAM BURROUGHS. It stated that he was in New York until February 1, 1957, when he planned to go to Paris with KEROUAC to publish a novel by BURROUGHS in that city. His address was listed at that time as 416 East 34th Street, Paterson, New Jersey. (u)

The "New York Times" issue of February 29, 1964, contained a review of a play "Guns of the Trees" by JONAS MEKAS, which was narrated by ALLEN GINSBERG. (u)

"New York Times" issues have contained reviews of GINSBERG's works, Kaddish and Howl. (u)

The "New York Times" issue of March 15, 1960, identified ALLEN GINSBERG as one of the cast of the film, "Pull My Daisy", which was a twenty-nine minute film based on a JACK KEROUAC play. In addition to GINSBERG, PETER ORLOVSKY, GREGORY CORSO, and LARRY RIVERS are also in the cast. The movie was produced by ROBERT FRANK and directed by ALFRED LESLIE. (u)

The "New York Times" issue of December 6, 1964, contained an article about a translation of a poem by the Lithuanian poet, EDUARDOS B. MEZHELAYTIS titled Howl Above Brooklyn Bridge. The article reflected that this poem was (u) influenced by GINSBERG's poem Howl. GINSBERG on interview said that he had met a group of Soviet writers in 1960, and that MEZHEL may have been one of them at a club here in New York City where the meeting occurred. GINSBERG disclaimed any politics for himself and stated "Howl had been an affirmation of man's feeling and glory and tenderness above and beyond the mechanistic, capitalist brain wash, insanity and war mongering poured out of Washington." (u)

The "New York Times" issue of March 15, 1960, contained an article reflecting that in Prague, Czechoslovakia, there is a Cafe called Viola, which is a Greenwich Village type. The article stated that works of GINSBERG were read there to jazz accompaniment. (u)

The "New York Times" issue of June 9, 1963, under the heading "A Week's Miscellany" stated that spokesmen for South Viet Nam Buddhists had felt sure that the man was a spy "tall, long beard, hair very long in back and curly. He said he was a poet and a little crazy and liked Buddhists. They did not know what else he was and decided he was a spy." The article humorously identified this individual as ALLEN GINSBERG, the beatnik poet, passing through South Viet Nam after a stay in India. It should be noted that another article in the "New York Times" of January 6, 1963, indicated that GINSBERG had spent several days in South Viet Nam on his way to British Columbia. (u)

The "New York Post" issue of March 13, 1959, contained a several page article captioned "The Beat Generation" by ALFRED G. ARONOWITZ. This article was entirely on ALLEN GINSBERG. The article identified his father as LOUIS GINSBERG, age 63, an English teacher and poet in Paterson, New Jersey. It described his mother as a psychotic and a Communist who had been in and out of mental institutions and was at that time in the New York State Psychiatric Hospital. (u)

GINSBURG in the interview stated that his poem Howl had been written for his mother and had sold more than 20,000 copies to date. It was a manifesto of the beat generation like JACK KEROUAC's novel, "On The Road". (u)

The article gave an example of the type of fan telegrams that GINSBERG receives in the following: (u)

"The pregnant angel and the white centipede are hot to make orange duck real tonight". (u)

It was pointed out that GINSBERG has many disciples among the beat generation and has himself been cast as a character in other beatnik literary works. He has been invited to read his works at various colleges and has read at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. (u)

In his past he has worked as a baggage clerk for Greyhound Bus Lines, a seaman, and wrote speeches for a candidate for United States Congress. (u)

The article covered a period in GINSBERG's early life when he was involved with an individual named HERBERT HUNCKE. They were arrested by the NYCPD on an auto theft charge and the article indicated that HUNCKE and GINSBERG had been close friends and living together during the period of the arrest. As a result of this arrest GINSBERG was committed to the New York State Psychiatric Hospital for a period of eight months. (u) H.E.

The article contained a story about when GINSBERG was a student at Columbia and was suspended on charges of sleeping with another male student. To this story GINSBERG stated with some anger that at the time of the suspension the charges were not yet true. (u)

NY 105-71471

The article commenced with the statement that in the recent past when GINSBERG was in Chicago he was approached by a woman there who asked him, "Why is there so much homosexuality in your poetry?" His reply was, "Because madam I'm queer. I sleep with men and women. I am neither queer nor not queer nor am I bisexual. My name is ALLEN GINSBERG and I sleep with whoever I want." (u)

The "New York Times" issue of May 3, 1964, contains an article about the new edition of "Who's Who in America" for 1964-1965. ALLEN GINSBERG is contained therein for the first time. (u)

The magazine "Pa'lante" published by the League of Militant Poets, Post Office Box 88, Peter Stuyvesant Station, New York City, printed in New York City, May 19, 1962, contains a letter, dated October 16, 1961, at Athens, Greece, from ALLEN GINSBERG. This letter is titled "Prose Contribution to Cuban Revolution". In the letter GINSBERG admits using narcotics, having homosexual experiences and homosexual love affairs. He describes himself as a person who desired to be a laboring peoples hero. He described his background as Jewish, left wing, atheist, Russian. (u)

In this letter he mentions various individuals such as VAN DOREN, KEROUAC, NEIL, BILL, HUNCKE, PETER, and TRILLING. An editors note identified these individuals as MARK VAN DOREN, Columbia University Professor, American writers PETER ORLOVSKY, NEIL CASSIDY, WILLIAM BURROUGHS and HERBERT HUNCKE, and Columbia University Professor, LIONEL TRILLING. APPENDIX

FAIR PLAY FOR CUBA COMMITTEE

The April 6, 1960, edition of "The New York Times" newspaper contained a full-page advertisement captioned "What Is Really Happening In Cuba," placed by the Fair Play for Cuba Committee (FPCC). This advertisement announced the formation of the FPCC in New York City and declared the FPCC intended to promulgate "the truth about revolutionary Cuba" to neutralize the distorted American press. (u)

"The New York Times" edition of January 11, 1961, reported that at a hearing conducted before the United States Senate Internal Security Subcommittee on January 10, 1961, Dr. CHARLES A. SANTOS-BUCH identified himself and ROBERT TABER as organizers of the FPCC. He also testified he and TABER obtained funds from the Cuban Government which were applied toward the cost of the aforementioned advertisement. (u)

On May 16, 1963, a source advised that during the first two years of the FPCC's existence there was a struggle between Communist Party (CP) and Socialist Workers Party (SWP) elements to exert their power within the FPCC and thereby influence FPCC policy. This source added that during the past year there had been a successful effort by FPCC leadership to minimize the role of these and other organizations in the FPCC so that their influence as of May, 1963, was negligible. (u)

The SWP has been designated pursuant to Executive Order 10450. (u)

On May 20, 1963, a second source advised that VINCENT "TED" LEE, FPCC National Office Director, was then formulating FPCC policy and had indicated that he had no intention of permitting FPCC policy to be determined by any other organization. This source stated that LEE believed that the FPCC should advocate resumption of diplomatic relations between Cuba and the United States and should support the right of Cubans to manage their revolution without interference from other nations. LEE did not advocate supporting the Cuban revolution per se. (u)

FAIR PLAY FOR CUBA COMMITTEE

The November 23, 1963, edition of "The New York Times" reported that Senator THOMAS J. DODD of Connecticut had called FPCC "the chief public relations instrument of the CASTRO network in the United States." It is to be noted that Senator DODD was a member of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee which twice conducted hearings on the FPCC.(u)

The December 27, 1963, edition of "The New York World Telegram and Sun" newspaper stated that the pro-CASTRO FPCC was seeking to go out of business and that its prime activity during its lifetime had been sponsorship of pro-CASTRO street rallies and mass picket lines, and the direction of an active propaganda mill highlighting illegal travel-to-Cuba campaigns. Its comparatively brief span of life was attributed to mounting anti-CASTRO American public opinion, the 1962 Congressional hearings which disclosed FPCC financing by CASTRO's United Nations Delegation, and ultimately, the bad publicity which the FPCC received from disclosure of activities on its behalf by suspected presidential assassin, LEE H. OSWALD.(u)

On February 6, 1964, the previously mentioned second source advised that V. T. LEE had recently remarked that the FPCC was dead and that there were no plans to organize another similar organization.(u)

On April 13, 1964, a third source advised that there had not been any FPCC activity in many months and that the FPCC had been dissolved.(u)

Enclosed herewith for the Bureau are 5 copies of an LHM dated and captioned as above, along with 2 copies of the 1962 passport photograph of subject. Enclosed for New York are 2 copies of the LHM and 4 copies plus 1 negative

The passport file of GINSBERG was reviewed by SA CARL E. GRAHAM 5/11/65 and attention was directed to his passport file inasmuch as he executed an application for passport renewal at Warsaw, Poland. This matter was noted during a review of such material in connection with the SOBIR program.

It was noted the passport file of GINSBERG was reviewed on 4/5/65 by an agent of the Bureau of Narcotics, Department of the Treasury, and at that time, the Bureau of Narcotics specifically requested copies of the latest passport photograph of GINSBERG.

The WFO file on this subject does not reflect the extent to which investigation may have been conducted by New York and other offices concerning his activities; however, it is significant that GINSBERG apparently traveled to Cuba early in 1965 and possibly later visited Czechoslovakia and more recently has shown up in Poland.

IRWIN ALLEN GINSBERG
Also Known As Allen Ginsberg

It will be noted information has been set forth previously in this case concerning planned travel to Cuba by Irwin Allen Ginsberg early in 1965, for which his current passport, Z-126223, issued June 19, 1962, at Calcutta, India, was specifically validated by the Department of State. This validation was approved January 8, 1965, and his passport was so stamped January 11, 1965, at the Boston Passport Agency.

A representative of the FBI reviewed the passport file of Ginsberg on May 11, 1965, at the Passport Office, Department of State, and the following information was obtained:

The passport file was noted to contain a news clipping from the January 8, 1965, issue of "Time" magazine. The news item made reference to Allen Ginsberg and it is being set out here:

"The name of the group is LEMAR, for legalized marijuana, and the activist San Francisco branch has even held puff-ins to protest the laws that forbid its use. Beat Poet Allen Ginsberg, 38, concedes that puff-ins might be fool-hardy but he's all for protests. So together with Fellow LEMARite Peter Orlovsky, he donned Japanese finger cymbals and showed up outside New York's Department of Welfare carrying a sign which read; SMOKE POT it's cheaper and healthier than liquor. New York's narcotic experts were contemplating a demonstration of their own for Ginsberg & Company. 'They should be picked up by the scruff of their necks', said Harlem's Dr. Robert Baird, 'and scrubbed down with Tide and Lestoil.'"

ENCLOSURE

IRWIN ALLEN GINSBERG

On April 15, 1965, at the American Embassy, Warsaw, Poland, Irwin Allen Ginsberg, showing local address as Hotel Europejski, Warsaw, presented Passport No. Z126223 for renewal. On his Application for Renewal, Ginsberg listed his permanent residence in the United States as 416 E. 34th Street, Paterson, New Jersey; named persons to notify in event of death or accident as Eugene Brooks and Louis Ginsberg (father), at the same address, in Paterson, New Jersey. Ginsberg stated he intended to return to the United States within three months; that his purpose in continuing to reside abroad during that period was "tourism."

"The Washington Evening Star" newspaper, Friday, May 14, 1965, carried an article captioned, "East Europe Ferment, CZECHS TRYING 'NEW MODEL'", under the byline of George Sherman, European Correspondent of "The Star". This article was datelined at Prague, Czechoslovakia. In this lengthy article, Sherman related the changes going on currently in Czechoslovakia and at one point discussed culture and the tastes of the so called younger set. Specifically, the article stated, "For the more sophisticated university set, there is the combination bar and poetry-reading room at the 'Viola' in central Prague. In March Allen Ginsberg drew full houses to readings of his American 'beat' poetry."

"The Washington Post" on Monday, May 17, 1965, on Page 1, carried a small article datelined Prague, May 16, by Associated Press, captioned "Czechs Expell Allen Ginsberg" and it is quoted as follows:

"American beat poet Allen Ginsberg has been expelled from Czechoslovakia, the Czechoslovak youth newspaper Mlada Fronta reported today.

"Ginsberg was briefly detained and his diary seized before his expulsion May 7. The diary contained details about Ginsberg's conduct while in Czechoslovakia, the paper said.

"He came to Prague to reign as king of a May Day weekend youth festival. He was voted the title by student admirers in Prague."

IRWIN ALLEN GINSBERG

The following information was received from the Foreign Broadcast Information Service, American Embassy, Vienna, Austria:

The May 16, 1965, issue of the Czechoslovakian publication "Mlada Fronta" contained an editorial article on GINSBERG as follows:

"Why the American Poet Was Expelled
From Czechoslovakia - Allen
Ginsberg and Moral Laws

"On May 7, 1965, the American poet Irwin Allen Ginsberg was summoned to the passport department of the Regional Office of the Ministry of the Interior in Prague. There he was told that his sojourn was undesirable and that he was to leave the Czechoslovak Socialist Republic at once. Allen Ginsberg accepted this decision without protest and on May 7 in the afternoon departed from Ruzyně Airport for London. In order to explain the reasons for Ginsberg's expulsion we must turn back to the beginning.

"Ginsberg arrived in Czechoslovakia on February 18, 1965. In its No. 10 issue the Literary Gazette (Literarni Noviny) introduced him as 'the most characteristic representative of nonacademic American poetry.' Allen Ginsberg read his poems to an audience of editors of the Literary Gazette, he acquainted himself with the capital, he got acquainted with young people and several times was their guest. He also went to visit Bratislava, where he met prominent authors. Everywhere he was "a welcome guest and his fame as a poet not only opened all doors to him but also helped him with his adventures, which he subsequently noted in his notebook. On March 19 he departed for the Soviet Union. On April 20 he was back again in Prague. At the request of his friends he participated in the May Day program of the Prague students. On the nights of May 3 and 5 he was apprehended by a police patrol for creating a disturbance, he was questioned and subsequently brought to his hotel.

"In its No. 12 issue the Literary Gazette carried an article by Igor Hajek on Ginsberg. Hajek partly quoted Ginsberg as follows: 'For me and my friends the chief source of creation is that part of the soul where subconscious intuitions reign, which usually conflict with the official interpretation and view of the world. When we sit down to write a novel or a poem, or paint a picture we have no idea of what the result of this process will be: we do not know the concept of creative intent. Therefore, it would be difficult for me to be an artist in a place where art is prescribed a program, where some sort of ideology rules. I strive to perceive the world without nomenclatures, without categories, without ideology, only with my open senses...' Is this a polemic with Marxism? Certainly. Ginsberg, after all, is no communist, although he grew up among communists - thus, the author of the article completes the passage and quotes other views of the American poet without taking any stand on them.

"The apparel of Allen Ginsberg is somewhat strange, it is true, but after all we do not judge people by their outward appearance. The essential thing is, that - as Igor Hajek writes - hundreds of young people in Czechoslovakia aroused and disturbed by the suggestive personality of this man, who is gentle like the lamb of God cut up in frenzied chops, will have the unexpected opportunity to hear him recite his poems and tell his personal story and his story as a poet...

"It is true that certain young people were aroused and disturbed. This goes even more for their "parents. Let us quote from a letter by a parent: 'We are profoundly indignant over the fact that Ginsberg's visit, instead of contributing to the recognition of cultural values created by leading American poets, has a negative effect because Ginsberg, in his extreme independence and irresponsibility, submits from his life those things which must be condemned: bisexuality, homosexuality, narcomania, alcoholism, posing, and a social extremism verging on orgies. This entire affair concerns us personally because our son devoted most of his work day either to Ginsberg's arrival or to discussions about him in the company of admirers of Ginsberg and did not study at all...' There were other letters in a similar vein and certain young men even had to seek treatment at the psychiatric clinic in Prague.

"All this proves that Allen Ginsberg somewhat exaggerates his independence. Naturally this is his affair, but only insofar as he does not harm our citizens by his conduct. Ginsberg obviously overstepped this limit and proof of this got into the hands of the Public Security Forces when on May 6 a Czechoslovak citizen handed over to the police a diary he had found in Prague on May 3. The diary belonged to Ginsberg and he also confirmed it to be his own when summoned to the police. In this diary Ginsberg freely describes in detail his sexual adventures with a series of young boys he met in Prague, in Bratislava, and Karlovy Vary. We do not feel as 'free' as he and certain scruples after all prevent us from printing these passages.

"Let us turn our attention to another aspect of Ginsberg's notes however. He moved about freely in our homeland and met whomever he wanted to meet. He was paid our money as well. Despite this, he writes that in his view 'all that story about the Iron Curtain is true.' He puts down in his notebook the contents of the talks he had with individual people in our country. He arrives at the view that 'all the capitalist myths about communism are true.'

"It is difficult to read the notes of a drunken man, the translator complained. But many of the things Ginsberg put down about his sexual "adventures, about his views and those of his friends are more than clear. In his diary we find insults of representatives of our state, of our party, and our people. Here is proof of acts which run counter to the laws not only in our state but in all cultured countries. In some countries they are punished even far more severely than with us. The end of Allen Ginsberg's stay with us - which our readers know already - could have been quite different..."

The May 17, 1965, issue of the publication "Rude Pravo," issued in Prague, Czechoslovakia, contained an unsigned article as follows:

"Hangover From Ginsberg

"According to information contained in an extensive article of 'Mlada Fronta' on May 16, the American poet Allen Ginsberg was expelled from Czechoslovakia as an undesirable person.

"If he had delighted in the shadowy lanes and in the beauty of the Charles Bridge, if he had read his poems at literary evenings, nobody would have hindered him in any way. Our country is known for its hospitality and it is polite to each foreigner it invites. It cannot and does not tolerate, however, anyone bringing manners to our country which a normal man - sorry to say - spits upon.

"Allen Ginsberg abused the hospitality of our country and grossly violated the norms of decent moral behaviour. The documents printed by the Sunday 'Mlada Fronta' testify to the fact that Ginsberg is a person with a sexual deviation and a narcotics addiction. He did not impose any restrictions on himself and continued his homosexual orgies in the city which welcomed him. He has been expelled from another country for the same reason.

"In its article 'Mlada Fronta' writes about some of the consequences of his influence, particularly on the young people. It prints the letter of parents, for instance, who fear for the fate of their son who is still under age: 'Since last "February, when Ginsberg came to our country, the undisciplined conduct of our son has culminated... Everything gives us the impression that the company our son is keeping now, under an artistic cloak, indulges in an unnatural sexual life and that our son, too, is misused for this..."

"A doctor-specialist of the Psychiatric consultation Service, too, adds her verdict:

"The harmful influence of the poet Allen Ginsberg, who suffers from narcomania and homosexuality, has been reflected in paediatric practice. First I heard of his influence on the young from a patient who has been under treatment for years for a grave emotional disturbance. He himself did not admit being influenced by Ginsberg because he rejects Ginsberg's poems..."

"The most conclusive proof is furnished by Ginsberg's personal notebook, which was found by a Czechoslovak citizen and handed over to our security organs. Ginsberg, who confirmed that the notebook found was his property, describes in it in detail sexual orgies he staged in various places with young men. Ginsberg's character is completed by the notes in which he speaks with disdain of our Republic and of the citizens whom he met and with whom he talked.

"The number of those who in the excesses took their guidance from Ginsberg was not negligible. After the publication of the facts about his moral character all have the opportunity to correct their uncritical feelings. After all any hang-over - however disagreeable it may be - is always useful insofar as it puts man back on firm ground."

FAIR PLAY FOR CUBA COMMITTEE

The April 6, 1960, edition of the "New York Times" newspaper contained a full-page advertisement captioned, "What Is Really Happening In Cuba", placed by the Fair Play For Cuba Committee (FPCC). This advertisement announced the formation of the FPCC in New York City and declared the FPCC intended to promulgate "the truth about revolutionary Cuba" to neutralize the distorted American press. (u)

"The New York Times", edition of January 11, 1961, reported that at a hearing conducted before the United States Senate Internal Security Subcommittee on January 10, 1961, Dr. CHARLES A. SANTOS-BUCH identified himself and ROBERT TABER as organizers of the FPCC. He also testified he and TABER obtained funds from the Cuban Government which were applied toward the cost of the aforementioned advertisement. (u)

On May 16, 1963, a source advised that during the first two years of the FPCC's existence there was a struggle between the Communist Party (CP) and Socialist Workers Party (SWP) elements to exert their power within the FPCC and thereby influence FPCC policy. This source added that during the past year, there had been a successful effort by FPCC leadership to minimize the role of these and other organizations in the FPCC so that their influence as of May, 1963, was negligible. (u)

The SWP has been designated pursuant to Executive Order 10450.

On May 20, 1963, a second source advised that VINCENT "TED" LEE, FPCC National Office Director, was then formulating FPCC policy and had indicated that he had no intention of permitting FPCC policy to be determined by any other organization. This source stated that LEE believed that the FPCC should advocate resumption of diplomatic relations between Cuba and the United States and should support (u) the right of Cubans to manage their revolution without interference from other nations. LEE did not advocate supporting the Cuban revolution per se. (u)

The November 23, 1963, edition of "The New York Times" reported that Senator THOMAS J. DODD of Connecticut had called FPCC "The chief public relations instrument of the CASTRO network in the United States." It is to be noted that Senator DODD was a member of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee which twice conducted hearings on the FPCC. (u)

The December 27, 1963, edition of "The New York World Telegram and Sun" newspaper stated that the pro-CASTRO FPCC was seeking to go out of business and that its prime activity during its lifetime had been sponsorship of pro-CASTRO street rallies and mass picket lines, and the direction of an active propaganda mill highlighting illegal travel-to-Cuba campaigns. Its comparatively brief span of life was attributed to mounting anti-CASTRO American public opinion, the 1962 Congressional hearings which disclosed FPCC financing by CASTRO's United Nations delegation, and ultimately, the bad publicity which the FPCC received from disclosure of activities on its behalf by suspected Presidential assassin, LEE H. OSWALD. (u)

On February 6, 1964, the previously mentioned second source advised that V. T. LEE had recently remarked that the FPCC was dead and that there were no plans to organize another similar organization. (u)

On April 13, 1964, a third source advised that there had not been any FPCC activity in many months and that the FPCC had been dissolved. (u)

Dressed in corduroy jacket, Ginsberg digs tape recorder

By David Mathiason

Allen Ginsberg seems to gain in physical stature when he appears before an audience. At Bohler Gym last night reading his poetry he gripped the speaker's platform with both hands and his voice filled that barn-like structure.

Ginsberg presented a much less imposing figure late yesterday afternoon when he arrived at the CUB where he consented to be interviewed for the Daily Evergreen. Dressed in blue jeans, a rumpled white shirt and tie and a corduroy jacket, he walked with the aid of a cane. In person the poet is slightly stoop-shouldered with an almost bow-legged gait.

Ginsberg answered questions with the provision that "we walk and I'll talk into your tape recorder."

Ginsberg was accompanied by Dick Bakken and Peter Orlovsky. Bakken is a young poet who received his master's degree in English at WSU and Orlovsky was once listed by Ginsberg in a "Who's Who" biographical sketch as his "wife."

The three had driven to Pullman from Portland where Ginsberg gave a poetry reading the night before. Ginsberg explained that he wanted to see the Columbia River gorge. He wrote some poetry during the trip which with some earlier work done in the Pacific Northwest formed part of his program.

He seemed particularly fascinated with the tape recorder and at one point asked to see if it was still running. He said that he sometimes used one while he was writing.

Sitting in the Cougar's Lair drinking a cup of tea Ginsberg commented that he usually gave poetry readings at colleges and that he wasn't sure what he communicated to young people. As he left the CUB several students recognized him and he smiled and nodded to them.

Ginsberg accepted an invitation for dinner at a private residence from John Peterson who works at the Kolonia House. On the way from the CUB to the car that Ginsberg had driven from Portland in, a red Volkswagen, a flatbed truck loaded with students in the back drove by and some of them waved to Ginsberg who waved back with his cane.

Sitting three abreast in the back seat of the Volkswagen, Ginsberg talked about politics. American society, he said is a police state. He said this was demonstrated by the violence in Chicago last year during the Democratic convention.

Ginsberg also charged that man is destroying his environment with unregulated technology. "We may be able to bring our technology under control, I don't know. If not we will destroy the planet," he said.

He commented that students in the 1940s and 1950s were poli-

Ginsberg—'real, warm'

Article

BY BOB STOWELL

Reprinted from CANTA

New Zealand

I met Allen Ginsberg this summer while teaching at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He had come to Amherst to read his poetry that evening and, with three or four students, we talked for an hour in the lounge on the sixth floor of the twenty-two storey John F. Kennedy dormitory.

The first impression one has is of warmth; that Ginsberg is real, that he cares about people, that when he talks with you all of his attention is on you and what the two of you are discussing. His heavy black beard serves as a kind of counterpoint to the huge bald head.

Chicago Convention

We talked first about the student protests and the violent confrontations with the police, particularly the brutality at the Chicago convention of the Democratic party. Ginsberg said that having taken part in some of these, he could say without question that the police had been both provocative and unnecessarily violent; certainly far more of the violence came from the forces of "law and order" than from the students.

There seemed to be a nearly automatic reaction when policemen see long hair and sandals to wade in with a club. The result has been a universal hatred and distrust of the "pigs" by the young, and this, in turn, has generated more violence.

He said that some of the more revolutionary leaders of the "Resistance" and the underground in America had decided to stay completely out of sight because of the distortions and mis-use of their views by the mass media. The big picture magazines and television were a natural menace to the radical. They often did succeed in "taming" unwary radicals by offering them big fees for articles or television appearances where they destroyed the effectiveness of his ideas by presenting them in "jazzed up" popular versions or through subtle distortions.

One young man in our group seemed obviously to be on drugs during our talk, and Ginsberg was especially gentle with him, speaking slowly so that he could follow the conversation. Ginsberg said that he had seen too often the disastrous effects of such hard drugs as LSD, "speed" and heroin, but he was convinced that the use of marijuana should be legalised. Like many others who have spoken about drugs, Ginsberg pointed out that marijuana was less of a social evil than alcohol. Both alcohol and pot were subject to mis-use by the sick, the weak, the inexperienced, but to Ginsberg did say that heroin had ruined several years of his own life.

Allen Ginsberg

We got onto the subject of war resistance when I asked him how he felt about paying his federal income tax when three-quarters of it went for war in Vietnam and preparations for future wars. Ginsberg became quite excited and asked "Are you serious? Do you really want to know?" He had evidently just decided to refuse to pay any federal taxes for the illegal, immoral and unjust war in Vietnam. With a wink in his eyes, he said that he was also using the United States government. Ginsberg said that he had good lawyers who would plead in case against the government. A number of doctors were willing to testify that the Vietnam war had done grievous bodily harm to Ginsberg, and they could prove this medically. In some past years his income had been too low to be of interest to the government, but this year he had decided to make a stand. He hoped that many others could also refuse to pay for the war. Ginsberg felt that this was an excellent way for those who were too old for the draft to make a strong protest against the war.

HOWL WITH GINSBERG

Ginsberg was speaking in the evening at the university auditorium, and he excused himself for a few minutes to telephone Robert Creeley who was vacationing nearby to see if he would like to join him on the programme. That evening the crowd was so large that two sessions had to be arranged (the auditorium holds 3,500 people). A guerilla theatre group came on the stage before Ginsberg and put on a raucous "happening" ridiculing the Vietnam War. Then Ginsberg read from Howl and Reality Sandwiches as well as some of his uncollected poems. Robert Creeley also read a few poems and he and Ginsberg exchanged some comment on the modern American scene. The audience was most enthusiastic. Ginsberg's poetry must be read aloud; it suffers more than most work if read silently. Students had somehow managed to hang a huge banner above the stage with red letters three feet high "...the Establishment."

As a footnote, I met another fine poet a few days later when I attended a vigil against the war in Vietnam. A group of about twenty of us stood on the steps of a park in the centre of Amherst, the vigil having been held weekly for nearly three years. Members of the vigil took turns reading the names of Americans who had been killed in Vietnam. Standing next to me was a tall, ruddy-faced man who looked rather like a farmer in his red shirt and khaki pants. After the vigil he turned to me and said "I'm Robert Francis". One book of his poems, The Sound I Listened For, had interested me greatly. A few nights later I sat in front of a log fire in his cabin while he reminisced about his friendship with Robert Frost. Shelves of modern poetry lined his living room, making me realise the extent of the "rebirth" of poetry in the United States since 1950. I look forward to reading his autobiography when it is finished next year.

In January, 1965, it was reported that United States poet Allen Ginsberg had arrived in Cuba to participate as a poetry judge in an international contest of the Cuban cultural organization House of the Americas.

On September 24, 1960, a representative of the New York City Police Department provided a list of individuals invited to a reception sponsored by the Fair Play for Cuba Committee and the name of Allen Ginsberg was contained on this list. It was also reported that his name was maintained on a mailing list of that organization. The December 28,
contained an article concerning a demonstration on the preceding day by a group called Lemar, which was reported to be a contraction of "Legalize Marijuana" and among the individuals identified as participating in this demonstration was Allen Ginsberg. The "New York Times" of January 4, 1965, on page 24, column three, contained an article concerning Lemar and identified Ginsberg as a leading New York member thereof.
Also, the January 28, 1963, and December 28, 1964, editions of that same newspaper identified Ginsberg as one of the leaders of Lemar.

The March 13, 1959, edition of the "New York Post" contained a several-page article captioned "The Beat Generation" by Alfred G. Aronowitz, which reportedly dealt entirely with Ginsberg and identified his father as Louis Ginsberg, aged 63, an English teacher and poet in Paterson, New Jersey. The article reportedly described Ginsberg's mother as a psychotic and a communist who had been in and out of mental institutions and was at that time in the New York State Psychiatric Hospital. This article referred to Ginsberg's early life when he was arrested by the New York City Police Department on an auto theft charge, as a result of which he was reportedly committed to the New York State Psychiatric Hospital for a period of eight months. It further indicated that when Ginsberg was a student at Columbia University he was suspended on charges of sleeping with another student. Ginsberg reportedly denied these charges. The article also indicated that in response to a question as to why there was so much homosexuality in his poetry, Ginsberg reportedly stated that he was "queer," that he sleeps with men and women and considered himself as bisexual.

The magazine "Pa'Lante" published by the League of Militant Poets in New York City, in May, 1962, reportedly contained a letter dated October 16, 1961, at Athens, Greece, from Ginsberg, entitled "Prose Contribution to Cuban Revolution," in which Ginsberg allegedly admitted using narcotics and having homosexual experiences and love affairs. He allegedly described his background as "Jewish, left wing, atheist, Russian."

The May 17, 1965, edition of "The Washington Post" on page one carried an article dated at Prague, Czechoslovakia, May 16, 1965, indicating that American poet Allen Ginsberg had been expelled from Czechoslovakia, that his diary had been seized before his expulsion and it contained details of his conduct while in Czechoslovakia. The article indicated Ginsberg had come to Prague to reign as king of a May Day weekend youth festival.

Enclosed herewith is one copy of a memorandum dated May 24, 1965, at Washington, D.C., concerning Ginsberg, being information obtained by the Foreign Broadcast Information Service pertaining to Ginsberg's reported expulsion from Czechoslovakia.

In connection with Ginsberg's expulsion from Czechoslovakia, the July 11, 1965, issue of the "New York Times," magazine section, page 22, contained comments concerning this matter. (105-137059)

Various sources have reported that Ginsberg was active among the "Yippie" element during the disturbances at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, Illinois, during the Fall of 1968. (176-863)

Irwin Allen Ginsberg

In February, 1970, at a meeting at the University of New Mexico, leaflets captioned "Committee to Defend the Conspiracy" were passed out urging support for individuals who were under indictment for conspiracy in connection with the disturbances in Chicago during the Democratic National Convention. One of the listed members of the Committee to Defend the Conspiracy was Allen Ginsberg, not further identified.

(176-356-55)

The "New York Post" in its issue of March 3, 1970, on page nine, referred to a press conference on March 2, 1970, by the War Tax Resistance and the article referred to Ginsberg as a tax resister for two years; the article continued that Ginsberg had opened a conference indicating that tax resistance was to "short circuit the nerve system of our electronic bureaucracy" and further stated that his bank account had been seized by the Government in connection with funds which he owed.

(100-457215-2)

In November, 1968, a confidential source advised that a demonstration had been held at Fort Dix, New Jersey, on November 3, 1968, sponsored by the Students for a Democratic Society and a number of other organizations. The source advised that Allen Ginsberg had entered the base, spoken to a captain and then proceeded to the base chapel and "performed an exorcism against war" and later spoke at the demonstration.

(100-448910-113, pg. 51)

On May 16, 1969, approximately 150 Students for a Democratic Society members and sympathizers participated in a demonstration at St. Bonaventure University, Olean, New York, against the Reserve Officer's Training Corps and the Vietnam war. Poet Allen Ginsberg spoke as part of the campus activities on the evening of that date.

(62-112228-6-27)

The Resistance is an organization active in Oregon in opposing draft activities and Allen Ginsberg reportedly appeared in Portland, Oregon, on April 23, 1969, as a benefit for The Resistance. A news letter by this organization in April, 1969, noted that 26 of "America's most distinguished poets" were to make clear their support of draft resistance by joining in a series of poetry readings across the country; Ginsberg was listed as one of the poets. The article indicated the readings were designed primarily to raise funds for organizing draft resistance activities and as a result of Ginsberg's appearance in Portland, approximately $1,600 was reportedly realized for The Resistance.

(14-2965-40-14, pg. 32)

Enclosed herewith is one copy of FBI Identification Division Record Number 713 322 B for Allen Ginsberg, born June 3, 1926, at Newark, New Jersey, which may pertain to the captioned individual.
